PROJECT :

Final Year Project

Project Name: Talkable speaking hand glove for speech impaired

- Designed for speechless using It is designed figure gestures. The glove is internally equipped with multiple flex sensors that are made up of "bend-sensitive resistance elements". For each specific gesture, internal flex sensors produce a proportional change in resistance of various elements. The processing of this information sends a unique set of signals to the AVR (Advance Virtual RISC) microcontroller which is preprogrammed to speak desired sentences.

Project name: Mobile control robot using DTMF

- Mobile controlling is done mainly with DTMF. This module can take up to 4bits at a time. DTMF needs two mobile platforms, one for sending instructions while another for receiving them. This module contains a IC which decodes the signal received and convert it into 4 bits. When you press the button on keypad, a connection is made and that generates two tones at the same time.
